Find a county. Check its fees.

Alphabetical county directory with searchable ZIP codes

2026 fee data | Prepared August 2026 | Reference edition

Use Ctrl+F (Windows) or Command+F (Mac), type the five-digit ZIP code, then move through the matches. ZIP lists are real text, not images. Each county starts on a new page. The alphabetical index and PDF bookmarks also jump directly to county sections.

Shared ZIP codes: A ZIP may appear under more than one county. Review every match and verify the county of the actual street address before selecting the serving office. A ZIP alone does not establish jurisdiction.

ZIP reference vintage: County associations are extracted from the Texas Legislative Council's ZIP Codes by District, Red-385, PLANC2308, dated July 30, 2025, with data labeled 2020 Census. They are not a verified 2026 USPS directory. New, retired, PO-box-only, or unique ZIPs may be absent. An unsuccessful search does not establish that a ZIP is invalid.

Source handling: Duplicate district entries are combined by county and ZIP. The source's 00000 entries are excluded as non-ZIP placeholders; zero-population ZIP rows are retained. District-split asterisks are removed because they do not identify county overlaps. No ZIP is assigned exclusively to one county.

Fee caution: This PDF preserves all 7,253 entries from the recovered workbook's Civil Process working view. Some related entries are ambiguous or may be noncivil. County schedules have not been independently verified. Amounts may be components, deposits, hourly rates or mileage, rather than total prices. Confirm with the receiving office.

Editorial notice: This guide is a compilation of reported fees, not a completed local-office audit. The sheriff on the cover is an illustration and does not imply endorsement by any public office.

ZIP source: Texas Legislative Council report | Fee source: Texas Comptroller

1. Introduction

This guide brings county-reported sheriff and constable fee information into one alphabetical reference for attorneys, paralegals, and litigation teams. Its purpose is to help readers locate a reported charge, identify conditions attached to it, and frame the questions that must be answered before requesting service or sending payment.

A fee lookup is the beginning of the inquiry. The exact document, requested action, receiving office, and conditions of the assignment matter. This book does not determine who is authorized to execute a particular document or replace counsel’s review of applicable law, court orders, and current local requirements.

The directory draws on the recovered workbook Texas_County_Process_Service_Fees_2026.xlsx. That workbook records an August 2026 extraction of the Texas Comptroller’s 2026 dashboard data. It contains 7,550 reported records across all 254 counties. Its civil-process working view contains 7,253 records, including related and uncertain entries retained for review. This manuscript reproduces that working view; it does not describe all 7,253 entries as confirmed civil-service fees.

The Comptroller states that county officials report the information and that the agency does not independently verify or certify its accuracy. This manuscript likewise has not been independently reconciled against all 254 local schedules. Confirm the current charge and payment instructions with the serving office.

2. How to read the fee directory

Begin with the original description

Each entry preserves the original fee name and reported conditions. When the source’s standardized name differs, it appears beneath the original description. These distinctions are retained because similar labels can describe different work or different components of a charge.

Read the amount together with its conditions

The reported number is not automatically the total cost of an assignment. Read the description for language about mileage, hours, additional personnel, minimum charges, deposits, commissions, sales, or other conditions. Do not add entries together unless the receiving office confirms that they apply together to the assignment.

Do not treat a reported zero as a quotation

A zero is reproduced as reported and flagged for confirmation. It does not establish that the service is free. An absent fee entry likewise does not establish that a service is unavailable or carries no charge. A blank condition field means the export supplied no condition there; it does not mean the office imposes none.

Separate service from enforcement work

Look for the exact requested action rather than choosing the first citation, eviction, or writ entry. For example, a row naming an eviction should not automatically be substituted for a row naming execution of a writ of possession. Ask the office which description applies. This is a lookup precaution, not a statement about legal authorization or procedure.

Read flags and unresolved codes

The review column carries the workbook’s flags verbatim. These are screening aids, not legal conclusions. The source type code is preserved without interpretation; it must not be assumed to identify a sheriff, constable, precinct, or payment destination. The reference number is the original export row, not the workbook row or a legal citation.

Entries about warrants, capias, bonds, transport, or similarly broad subjects may require additional civil-versus-criminal review. Their presence in this guide does not establish applicability to civil litigation. They remain visible so potentially relevant data are not silently discarded.

3. Attorney prepayment checklist

Before transmitting the assignment, obtain or confirm:

• The exact document and action requested.

• The correct receiving office and any applicable precinct or geographic limits.

• The current fee schedule and the charge applicable to this assignment.

• Whether the quoted amount is a fee, advance deposit, hourly rate, mileage rate, or another component.

• Any minimums, additional-person charges, expense requirements, or other conditions.

• Accepted payment methods, payee name, and delivery instructions.

• Required copies, enclosures, address information, and written instructions.

• Any deadline concerns and whether the office can accommodate them.

• The procedure for status inquiries, returns, and any unused deposit.

Record the date, office, person contacted, quoted amount, and material conditions in the case file. These are recommended confirmation questions, not assertions that every office has the same requirements.

5. Sources, methodology, and editorial review

Primary public source

Texas Comptroller - Sheriffs' and Constables' Fees. The source page and its verification disclaimer were checked August 2026. The amounts in this guide come from the recovered workbook, not a new live dashboard extraction during manuscript preparation.

Texas Comptroller - County Codes is the county completeness reference identified in the workbook. The manuscript's county headings were reconciled against the workbook's County Index.

Data handling

The underlying workbook retains 7,550 total source records. The manuscript includes all 7,253 rows in its Civil Process working view, without deduplication or aggregation. The remaining 297 records are classified in the workbook as other sheriff fees and are outside this manuscript. The original workbook remains the source for those records.

The manuscript preserves each included row's county, year, original fee name, differing standardized name, amount, category, source conditions, review flags, and source type code/export row. Monetary formatting does not round away source precision. Blank labels or conditions are marked "Not supplied." No county-wide flat price, average, or cheapest-office ranking has been inferred.

Required review before publication

• Reconcile all counties with the current official local schedules or written office confirmation.

• Resolve the meaning of source type codes before assigning any row to a particular office.

• Review ambiguous labels, possible criminal fees, zero entries, apparent duplicates, and conflicting charges.

• Confirm which amounts represent deposits, hourly rates, mileage, commissions, or other conditional components.

• Separate confirmed civil entries from unresolved material without silently losing source records.

• Add office-specific contact and payment details only when verified and dated.

• Review all explanatory material for legal accuracy, then complete book layout and proofing.

Notice

This is an independently prepared professional reference, not an official publication of the State of Texas, any county, sheriff, constable, or court. It is not legal advice and does not guarantee acceptance, successful service, timing, or a particular total charge. Counsel should verify current law and applicable court requirements; the receiving office should confirm current charges and submission instructions.
